ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

Describe architectural features. Evaluate the characteristics of this building in terms of other buildings within the community.

The dwelling at 69 Rogers Street has a Bungalow form. The hip roof, deep overhanging eave, shed dormer, and the now enclosed front porch are typical of the Bungalow style. Set back from the street on a site immediately adjacent to a small stream that feeds into the Great Swamp, the dwelling is raised up a full story on a molded concrete foundation. The hip roof is sheathed in asphalt shingles. The walls are clad in synthetic siding. The front entrance is a paneled wood door. Windows are 1/1 vinyl replacement sashes and paired casements in the enclosed porch. The first floor windows are flanked by shutters. An engaged porch is located on the rear (west) corner of the house.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE

Discuss the history of the building. Explain its associations with local (or state) history. Include uses of the building, and the role(s) the owners/occupants played within the community.

The small bungalow on the west side of Rogers Street was likely built c1917 when the lot was purchased by Stanislaus [Stanley] Golen and his wife Mary from Sarah J Poore Pike, a local bookkeeper who lived on Pike Street. Stanley Golen and his wife were born in Austria, spoke Polish, and immigrated to the United States in 1908. Golen worked c 1920 for the Taylor & Barker Chemical Works off Main Street in the village of Wamesit. By 1930 Golen was working as a laborer on the construction of the New England Power Company's power substation off Boston Road (TEW.900). In 1931 the Golen family removed to Lowell and sold the Rogers Street house to the Andrew Boumel [Boemel] family.

Andrew Boumel (1891-1966) was a mill operator in Lowell and Southwell Mills in Chelmsford. Andrew was born in Lithuania and immigrated to the United States c He and his wife Stefania [Stephanie] lived in Tewksbury with their children Albert, Blanche, and Edward. In 1961, an acre of the property was subdivided and given to Albert and his wife Phyllis for a home. Blanche lived with her parents for many years working as a nurse in the United States Navy in the 1940s and then as a nurse in Tewksbury.

Owners: Sarah J. Poore Pike (1917); Stanislaus & Mary Golen (1917-1931); Stefania Boumel (1931-2004); and Blanche Boumel (2004-2009).
